Foreword

Natural Disasters abound annually and the Asia-Pacific region is not spared the aftermath of such unpredictable happenings. Applying the discipline of logistics and supply chain management will help to not only save lives but also to efficiently manage costs and to substantially increase the value of the humanitarian response.

The Kuehne Foundation – NUS HumLog Centre Asia-Pacific which got launched in 2012 is aiming at equipping the various humanitarian actors such as Governments and NGOs with exactly this discipline.

In line with its guiding concept “from/by Asia for Asia” the Centre predominantly focuses on local and regional capacity building initiatives in the total community of practice. This encompasses a formulation of the best education initiatives facilitated by a quality research agenda and spiced by real-world best practices.

At the onset, the Centre recognized that the support of as well as the cooperation with the varied partners and actors from the different sectors and many different countries would be crucial for enhancing the humanitarian logistics capacity in the community of practice in the region. To maximize impact, the Centre’s services and activities will not only take place in Singapore but also at satellite stations close to the field operations. Therefore, the Centre has constantly been seeking new platforms to be built and supported as part of the ecosystem.

In this context Manila turned out to be an ideal location to run the Centre’s activities in close collaboration with The University of The Philippines. This first event brings together actors from all relevant sectors and is an excellent sample case for a truly local capacity building initiative.

The platform in Manila will officially be opened on 13 August 2013 during a one day seminar with various guest speakers from different sectors who will provide insights in their daily work in the context of humanitarian logistics.
